

Develop your retail professional star

New Zealand Apprenticeship in Retail (Level 3 & 4)

Customers choose where to shop based on service, product, price, location and so much more.

But it's skilled, talented and committed people that pull all that together and drive success for your business. Staff with the right skills and knowledge make your store the top choice for your customers.

ServiceIQ helps you offer talented, up-and-coming employees an apprenticeship that delivers everything they need to impress your customers and help you run a slick operation. It's also vital for growing a serious career in retail or management.

The programme is easily delivered to your staff, on-job, and at a pace that works for you.

How the programme works

The programme involves training in the workplace. Your store manager or supervisor trains your apprentice on the job and measures how well they are learning what they need to know. It's a time proven method that allows your apprentice to master new skills by applying them continually as they work.

A training plan outlines the skills your apprentice needs to learn, and when they need to learn them by.

Much of the learning can be self-taught using the supplied programme resources.

Your apprentice and their manager are supported by a ServiceIQ Assessor, or your own internal assessor, who monitors the training and progress, and carries out practical assessments of your apprentice's skills in your workplace.

Strong support all the way

Your ServiceIQ Sector Advisor signs your apprentice on as a trainee and mentors their progress throughout the programme. It includes quarterly visits with you and your apprentice to discuss their progress, set goals, and complete assessments.

How long is the programme?

Apprentices are encouraged to work at their own pace, around you and your business. The average completion time is 24 months.
