Tēnei te mihi ki a koutou katoa. Nau mai, haere mai, whakatau mai

When your students complete their schooling, they will, perhaps more than ever before, transition into an uncertain world. But some things remain unchanged or have become more important. Among these is the value of, and demand for, passionate, talented and skill people.

Among the many trials of COVID-19 was the need to keep students learning. The availability of online and remote learning options – already growing rapidly – exploded. Now, your students can have more learning choices than ever before, including many from ServiceIQ – Te Pūkenga.

Another outcome of the global necessity to take drastic action to deal with the pandemic has been the high demand for skilled people, especially in Aotearoa's service sectors. Hospitality and retail offer unprecedented opportunity. There is strong demand in tourism, aviation, and travel too.

All these sectors offer varied roles and careers, with many of today's leaders transitioning from school and working their way to the top or starting their own enterprises. That's why it's important for students to discover what is right for them.

The best thing young learners can do to help find their place and career is by having hands-on experience.

The ServiceIQ Talent Supply and Transitions Team recognises and supports the key role that educators and parents play in helping young people choose career options.

Experience in the service industry teaches them transferable skills to help progress into great careers. It can take young people around the world. With your help we can show positive and attractive career paths and help the next generation get the right balance in education and early career development.

That's where we come in.

To help connect students to roles across the service industry, ServiceIQ works directly with industry to provide a range of vocational education courses and programmes that imbed relevant and practical core skills.

First experiences in the workforce shape the careers that develop, so it's crucial to provide early opportunities and support. With skilled staff and training support and a commitment to excellence, your students can have a taste of a career in a supportive learning environment.

ServiceIQ is your specialist industry training partner. It's our responsibility to help young learners succeed in today's changing and uncertain world by gaining valued skills and relevant knowledge.

Why ServiceIQ in your school?

ServiceIQ is the training partner for the aviation, hospitality, retail, travel and tourism sectors in the service industry. We help hundreds of businesses succeed by growing their talent, and we help young New Zealand students get a head-start with skills they need for a satisfying career and employment in the service industry.

Each ServiceIQ Schools programme is designed by industry and education experts and links to a career pathway. When you choose ServiceIQ you choose:

- ▶ Opportunities for your students to train on the job and qualify to be a chef, aviation engineer, pilot, travel agent, tour guide, food and beverage manager, café or restaurant maitre d', retail manager and many other great careers.
- ▶ Structured classroom and workplace-based programmes backed up with support from our dedicated ServiceIQ Schools Transitions Advisors.
- ▶ An expert team of researchers, writers and designers who create and publish the largest and most diverse range of high-quality vocational school resources on offer in New Zealand.

Top skills employers need

We talk to New Zealand employers every day to make sure our resources are the right fit for workplace learning. Employers also tell us what type of future employees they're looking for.

They are:

- ▶ people with the right attitude and aptitude
- ▶ people with core skills for broad roles.

ServiceIQ has established core sets of skills and transferable standards so students can jump between career pathways when they leave school. We've consulted with industry to identify the core skills needed for service career pathways and built them into all schools training programmes.

Gateway

Introducing ServiceIQ Gateway training

ServiceIQ offers a wide range of great Gateway training that helps students gain skills, experience, and kick-start a career in the exciting services industry when they leave school. They'll also gain unit standards and make professional contacts that can help open doors to a wide range of fantastic jobs and careers in the growing aviation, tourism, hospitality and retail service sectors.

Their ultimate role could be chef, retail supervisor, store manager, pilot, tour guide, travel consultant, restaurant food and beverage manager, aeronautical engineer, airport operations manager, air traffic controller, hotel manager, warehouse or retail distribution manager, tourism operator, and many more.

Gateway options

There are two types of Gateway training available: readymade by ServiceIQ, and DIY where your school's Gateway Coordinators select from the wide range of ServiceIQ products to create tailor-made learning programmes for students. The DIY option is especially helpful for students who aspire to be cooks, chefs, or build a career in New Zealand's tourism industry.

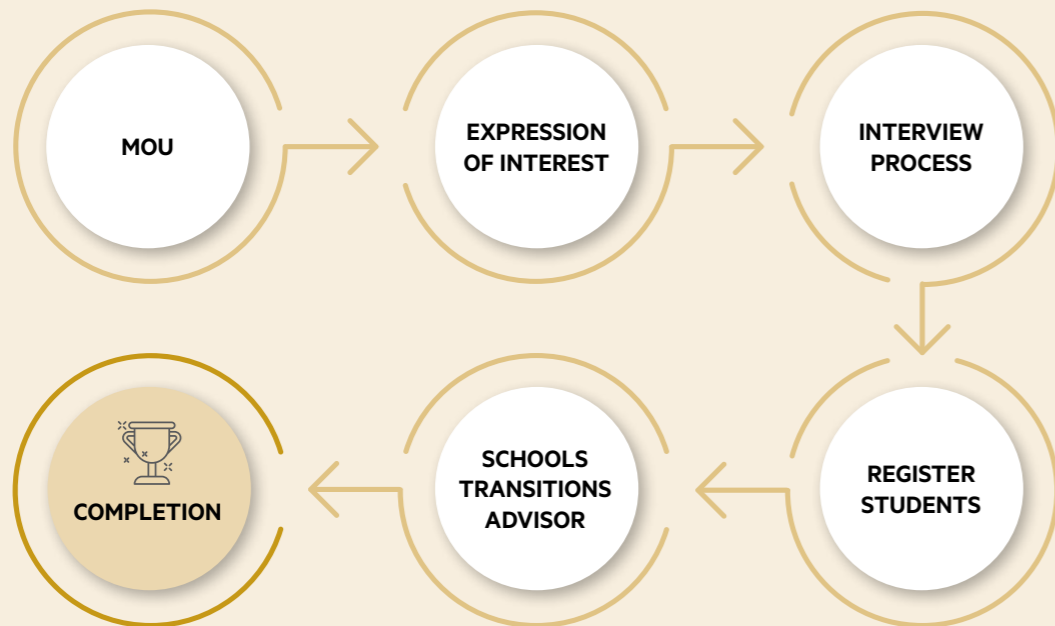

How Gateway works

A ServiceIQ Schools Transitions Advisor and the workplace together guide and support your students to make sure they get an all-round understanding of the service sector. Students will be supplied with learning resources, and clear development plans from the Schools Transitions Advisor, who keeps the school up to date. Prospective students need to bring something too: the right attitude and a willingness to work, which helps guarantee their learning success.

Benefits for students

- ▶ Get an introduction to an exciting career in the service sector.
- ▶ Gain credits towards a nationally recognised qualification.
- ▶ Get real experience in a real workplace.
- ▶ Enjoy the camaraderie of working as part of a team.
- ▶ Learn great industry skills and knowledge essential for a service sector career.
- ▶ Learn in a fully supportive environment.

Retail Gateway Programmes

Retail is an exciting career choice with loads of possibilities – from helping customers, stock management and marketing to running a store. Lots of successful retailers, who started in sales, have gone on to manage a department, a store and even a company by their mid-20s, or even own and operate their own business.

Aviation Gateway Flying Programme

ServiceIQ's Aviation Gateway Flying Programme is a fantastic way for students to get a feel for what it's like to fly an aircraft, plus get insights about other roles in the exciting sector. If the passion is to be a pilot, this first-time flying experience helps students gain acceptance into full-time flight training when they leave school.

Students do their training with CAA-qualified instructors at a local aero club during term time. The programme usually takes about 10 weeks, and normally runs between 1.00pm and 3.30pm. All aviation learning is the responsibility of the school and the aero club. ServiceIQ only provides the resources available in the Gateway DIY guide, which can include assessment services at the stated prices.

Aviation Gateway Aeroscience Programme

Aviation has a lot of career possibilities, and this Gateway programme offers the ideal quick start. It positions students for a career as a pilot and opens other career path options too. For example: meteorologist, aeronautical engineer, air traffic controller, flight dispatcher and many more. It covers navigation and applies practical science – a perfect match with your existing curriculum.

ServicelQ's Aviation Gateway Aeroscience Programme is a fantastic way for year 13 students to progress to an aviation career path while still at school. The external assessment will also provide real Private Pilot Licence theory exams endorsed by the New Zealand Civil Aviation Authority (NZCAA).

Students can also get a feel for what it is like to fly an aircraft, plus great insights about other roles in aviation. If their passion is to be a pilot or one of the related professions, this is the Gateway programme that will position them in an industry where youth, passion and commitment are key essentials for a successful career.

Talent Supply and Transitions

Taking the first step into the world of work can be daunting. With little experience it's hard to know what to expect and how to engage with future employers. ServiceIQ works with industry and Government to help make finding the first role out of school easier.

ServiceIQ run a series of events that connect schools, communities and employers throughout the year. These offer students exciting career pathways after secondary school. It also shows potential employers the talent and passion coming through schools. The aim is to provide employment opportunities to school leavers that set them on a vocational learning pathway. This means students can continue learning and get paid for the great work they're doing.

We need your help to make this a success. Expressions of interest are being sought for vocational pathway cluster meetings. ServiceIQ has a team that is ready to bring interested Careers Advisors together to provide information on vocational pathways in the service sectors.

Get involved

To find out how you can be involved in the pathway cluster meetings or at any of the meetup events please email ServiceIQ Talent Supply and Operations Support Manager, at Careers@ServiceIQ.org.nz or talk to your ServiceIQ Schools Transition Advisor.

Our experts are here to help you
